Jean (Jean-Baptiste)	Godefroy	sieur de Lintot		1626	1636	Marie	Leneuf		1612	Noble man Jean Godefroy, Sieur de Lintot, born 1608, son of Pierre Godefroy and Miss Perrette Cavelier, of Lintot, Pays de Caux, Normandy, was brought to New France by Champlain and served as an interpreter for several years. He was from a family of which some members had been ennobled". When the English had taken Quebec (1629), Godefroy retired among the savages, his friends, and on Champlain's return (1633), he settled in Trois-Rivières. He can be considered as the founder of this last position. He married (December 15, 1636) Miss Marie Leneuf, a native of Caen. The Compagnie des Cent-As.sociés granted him four or five seigneuries around Trois-Rivières. In 1651, he was a member of the council of the colony Louis XIV granted him letters of nobility (1668), later renewed (1721) in favor of his grandson, the judge René Godefroy de Tonnancourt. Marie Le Neuf was the daughter of Mathieu Le Neuf du Herrisson, and his wife Jeanne Le Marchant.
Thomas	Godefroy 2	Sieur de Normanville		1626						2 Thomas Godefroy, Sieur de Normanville, interpreter and man of often noted bravery. From 1634 to 1652, he lived in Trois-Rivières. It is near this place that the Iroquois took him prisoner (1652); he perished at the stake.
Robert	Giffard			1627	1633	Marie	Renouard			Robert Giffard, born in 1587 in Mortagne, Perche, was attached, as a doctor, to the vessels which made the annual voyage to Canada. In 1627, a hut he had built at La Canardière, to enjoy hunting and fishing, was the scene of the murder of a man named Dumoulin and another Frenchman, a servant of Madame Hébert, whom the savages had taken for Doctor Giffard's servant and baker. In 1633 he married Marie Renouard
Guillaume	Hubou			1627	1629	Marie	Rollet 3			Honorable Guillaume Hubou, a native of Normandy, married, on May 16, 1629, Marie Rollet, widow of Louis Hébert, and lived on the Sainte-Geneviève coast.
Francois	Marguerie			1627	1645		Cloutier			in 1634, François Marguerie, was established in Trois-Rivières as an interpreter, and owned land there. François Marguerie, born 1614, son of François Marguerie and Marthe Romain, of Saint-Vincent de Rouen, Normandy, is among the interpreters of Champlain's time who have most attracted the attention of historians. He drowned in 1648 near Trois-Rivières.

Simon	Baron			1631						Simon Baron had lived in Chibou, Cape Breton Island, around 1631, and had acquired some knowledge there as a surgeon. In 1634, he was in the service of the Jesuits, and he accompanied the missionaries to the country of the Hurons, from where he returned in 1637. He is mentioned at Trois-Rivières in 1637, 1658, 1664.
Noel	Juchereau 2			1632						Noël Juchereau, sieur des Chastelets, né à la Ferté-Vidame, diocèse de Chartres, dans la Beauce, était licencié en droit. On suppose qu'il agissait à Québec dans les intérêts des marchands, M.M Rosée et Cheffault, qui désiraient se faire accorder par les Cent-Associés une part de la traite de la Nouvelle- France.
Pierre	Blondel			1634	1633	Marie-Alison	Gourdin			Pierre Blondel, brewer at the fort, and his wife, Marie-Alison Gourdin, met at Trois-Rivières from 1634 to 1645.
Gaspard	Boucher			1634	1619	Nicole	Lemaine			Gaspard Boucher, cousin of Marin, also born in Langy, was a carpenter. He had married (1619) Nicole Lemaine. Children: Pierre (1622), Nicolas (1627), Marie (1630), Madeleine (1633), Marguerite (1634). In the spring of 1634, in the company of several of his fellow citizens who were leaving for Canada,1 he embarked with his family and became a farmer at Beauport. Pierre, the most illustrious of his children, and the first Canadian ennobled, having settled in Trois-Rivières (where his sisters were already), Gaspard went to settle there (1646) with his wife, and lived there for another dozen of years.
Marin	Boucher			1634	1632	Perrine	Malet			Marin Boucher, born 1589, in Langy, bishopric of Mortagne, Perche, had first married (1625), Julienne Barry, with whom he had a child, François, who made an alliance in Quebec (1641) with Florence Gareman, born in 1629, daughter of Pierre Gareman and Madeleine Chariot, of Baigneux, near Soissons, Picardy. The combined age of the two spouses was twenty-seven. In second marriages. Marin Boucher had married (1632) Perinne Malet, born 1606, with whom he had a first son, Jean-Galeran, born 1633. Around this time, he sold Jean Guyon a house he owned in Mortagne, rue Saint-Jean, "joining Pierre Forget," and, in 1634, he followed Mr. Giffard to Canada. He settled at the Saint-Charles River, on the lands that the Récollets had had. He died at Château-Richer in 1671.

Jean	Bourdon			1634	1635	Jacqueline	Potel			Jean Bourdon, Sieur de Saint-François, born in Rouen, arrived in Quebec on August 4, 1634. The following year, he married Jacqueline Potel. In 1637, we see him surveying certain lands in Trois-Rivières. Soon after, he concedes the seigneury of D'Autray, at Cap de l'Assomption; and later, Sainte-Jeanne de Neuville or Pointeaux-Trembles de Québec. In 1641, he made a map of the lower Saint-Laurent. In the autumn of 1645, he was appointed interim governor of Trois-Rivières. In 1646, he went on an embassy to the Iroquois and commanded a patrol on the river, as well as in 1647. He made a trip to France in 1650. In 1657, he married, in second marriage, Anne Gagnier, born 16 14, widow of Jean Clément Du Vault, lord of Monceaux, knight of Saint-Louis. He was in turn a painter, carpenter, baker, gunner, attorney-general and chief engineer of New France. His travels in the country of the Eskimos and Hudson Bay rank him among the discoverers. In 1664, during the struggle between Monseigneur de Laval and the governor, he went to France to solicit support for the cause he supported. We owe him a fine plan of Quebec under the date of 1660. Until his death in 1668, he was one of the most useful inhabitants of the colony.
Zacharie	Cloutier			1634	1615	Xainte	Dupont			Zacharie Cloutier, born 1590, Mortagne, Perche, carpenter, married around 161 5 with Xainte Dupont, born 1596, had two boys and two girls when he arrived in Quebec (1634), following M. Giffard-. He settled in Château-Richer,
Sebastien	Dodier			1634	1645	Marie	Bonhomme			Sébastien Dodier, carpenter, lived in Trois-Rivières in 1634; his house was on the current place-d'armes. His wife, Marie Bonhomme, is mentioned for the first time in this place in 1645. He seems to have been related to Gaspard Boucher. We do not know what became of his children.
Thomas	Giroux 2			1634			inconnu			2 Thomas Giroux, from Mortagne, arrived on Captain Deville's ship, June 4, 1634'. We do not know of his descendants.
Jean	Guyon			1634	1633	Madeleine	Boule			Jean Guyon (today Dion), mason, literate man, from Mortagne, Perche, had married, around 1634, Madeleine Boulé.
Jean	Guyon			1634	1619	Mathurine	Robin			Jean Guyon, from the same village as the other Jean Guyon, and, also a mason, had married, around 1619, Mathurine Robin. In the spring of 1634 he followed Mr. Giftard to Canada. He received from this lord the fief of Buisson.
Guillaume	Isabel			1634	1648	Catherine	Dodier			Guillaume Isabel occupied a piece of land in Trois-Rivières in 1634, and two years later he obtained a second. Married (1648) to Catherine Dodier; killed (1652) by the Iroquois, he left two daughters

In 1634, he occupied land where the monastery of the Ursuline ladies stands today. He married, around 1645, Jeanne Méchin. Syndic of Trois-Rivières (1651-55), then judge of the seigniory of Champlain, he died (1697)
Jean	Sauvaget			1634	1613	Anne	Dupuis			Jean Sauvaget, an educated man, seems to have come from the vicinity of La Rochelle, with his wife, Anne Dupuis, born 1586, widow in first marriage of a named Benassis. Their daughter Jeanne, born in 1614, had married Guillaume Benassis, of whom there is no trace in Canada, which suggests that he died before 1634. Jeanne remarried (1656) to Elle Bourbeau. Madeleine Benassis, daughter of this same Jeanne, married (1647) Etienne Seigneuret. If we are to believe the censuses and the entries in the parish register, Anne Dupuis would have died at the age of one hundred, fifty-two of whom spent in Trois-Rivières. Sauvaget became tax attorney, and was the first concessionaire of Pointe-du-Lac. His ashes, Bourbeau and Seio-neuret, were also educated and highly regarded men.

Francois	Chavigny	de Berchereau de Creance		1640	1638	Eleonore	Grandmaison 3			Noble man François Chavigny de Berchereau, from Créancee, Champagne, arrived in the country around 1640. He had just married Eiéonore de Grandmaison, born 1622, widow of Antoine Boudier, Sieur de Beauregard. He settled in Sillery, where he had been granted land; his influence was great in New France; M. de Montmagny appointed him to represent him during his absences from Quebec. Being from the same province as M. de Maisonneuve, Mademoiselle Mance and Mademoiselle Bourgeois, and moreover their personal friend, he was consulted by the founders of Montreal as well as by those of Quebec. During a trip he made to France in the interest of his health, he died there (1651), and his widow married at Quebec, 1652, Jacques Gourdeau Sieur de Beaulieu, a native of Poitou. Eieonore had lands on Île d'Orléans, and granted refuge there to the Hurons when these poor savages were driven from their country, 1649-50. She was given, in 1652, the two lands of Chavigny, which her second husband had begun to farm, and the neighboring fief, named today Deschambault. Her house on the Île d'Orléans having been consumed by fire, 1651, she rebuilt it and made it her home, if she was not already established there. This is where the sir Gourdeau was assassinated in 1663 by a servant who set fire to the house to hide his crime. In fourth marriage, Eiéonore married Jacques Des Cailhaut de la Tesserie
